Please note the following:

The results, which will be sent to you by SMS text messaging, will be provisional and may not be used as official confirmation of your achievement nor relied upon in any way. The IELTS Partners give no guarantee as to the accuracy of all or any such information. You should wait until you receive the official Test Report Form showing your results and make decisions based on that information, not on the SMS results.

It is your responsibility to provide your test centre with accurate and up-to-date information. Neither the test centre nor the IELTS Partners will accept any responsibility if your results fail to reach you by SMS, whether due to any technical fault or due to the loss or theft of your mobile phone or any other circumstances.

Data Protection

Your test centre will use the information that you are providing only to send your IELTS test results.
